DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by United States Patent No. 4,739,775 to Hampl ("Hampl").

Hampl describes a cigarette with an increased self extinguishing tendency having annular zones of poly vinyl acetate [figure 4; col. 4 lines 55-68]. Polyvinyl acetate has the interfacial tension required by the claim as admitted by applicant in applicant's specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

Art Unit: 1731

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hampl as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of United States Patents 1,757,380 to Molins and United States Patent pre grant publication No. 2003/0131860 to Ashcraft et al. ("Ashcraft") Molins teaches what is not expressly taught by Hampl, namely that the intaglio printing process is known in the cigarette paper art [col. 2 lines 50-55]. At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art of cigarette manufacture to use the intaglio process to apply the polymer to the cigarette paper because Hampl teaches that various means may be used for attachment of the bands to the wrapper [col. 4 lines 55-68] and the method of Molins is one of such means known in the cigarette art. Hampl and Molins are analogous because both relate to the application of polyvinyl acetate to cigarette paper. Ashcraft among other patents<sup>1</sup> teach what is not expressly taught by Molins, namely that ethanol is an exemplary organic solvent for use with polyvinyl acetate. At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art of cigarette manufacture to use ethanol as the organic solvent for the polyvinyl acetate because Ashcraft teaches it as exemplary [paragraph 68]. Ashcraft and Hampl are analogous because both relate to the use of polyvinyl acetate on cigarette paper. Additionally, based on the structural similarities between the polymer claimed and the polymer described in the current rejection it is deemed that the predominate part of the polymer would penetrate into the cigarette paper.
